

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Current Analysis Partners with the European VPN Users Association

PARIS / June 16, 2005 / Yesterday, the European VPN Users Association (EVUA) at their conference in Chatham, UK named Current Analysis an official industry partner of the organization.

Current Analysis, a worldwide provider of tactical intelligence, analysis and competitive response solutions in the telecommunications, wireless and IT hardware industries, joined with the EVUA to announce the partnership. This announcement signifies the first time the two organisations have united to provide members of the EVUA exclusive access to the company's Web-based intelligence service, CurrentCOMPETE™.

Ed Vonk, CEO of the EVUA, addressed the importance and value of the partnership to the organisation's members, "With Current Analysis, we have a partner that will provide a professional, analytical, consistent and timely view of rapid developments within the telecom industry."

Together, the entities will offer market analysis and intelligence to members of the EVUA through a variety of measures. The EVUA Web site (www.evua.org) will provide a direct link to complimentary access of CurrentCOMPETE™. Members can register to receive daily analysis of important new products and market activity as well as gain access to a continuously updated database of in-depth, expert critiques of more than 500 vendor organisations.

In addition, Current Analysis' team of industry experts will be on hand at the EVUA's conferences, roundtables and other events throughout the year to support the membership base by providing insight on market trends, the impacts of market events and address the future of the market.

Based in the United Kingdom, the EVUA is a global, non-profit focus group that addresses the current and future network service needs of multinational corporations by driving the marketplace to deliver competitive rates. In addition, the organisation, which is comprised of IT and procurement managers from Fortune 100 companies, addresses issues surrounding enterprise network services, mobility, call centres, IP and conferencing.

Current Analysis, headquartered in Sterling, Virginia, maintains a consortium of European offices in London, Paris, and Germany as well as a European based analyst team.

Contacts:

Current Analysis:

Chalise Zolezzi

Director of Public Relations

Phone: +01 858-729-5287

E-mail: Czolezzi@currentanalysis.com

About Current Analysis: Current Analysis is the industry benchmark for excellence in navigating today's markets, serving as a critical, third-party expert in market and product analysis by offering competitive response solutions in the telecommunications, information technology and consumer electronics industries. By providing the most comprehensive and rapid intelligence through our CurrentCOMPETE™ platform, Current Analysis enables sales teams, marketing professionals, product managers, and executives to continuously anticipate and counter competitive threats while offering solid solutions to emerging obstacles. As a global company, Current Analysis has a worldwide network of researchers, competitive analysts, and industry experts to identify market and competitor threats from a frontline perspective, and offer conclusive, tactical advice on market strategy, positioning and response objectives. Current Analysis clients include equipment manufacturers, service providers, major multinational enterprises, financial institutions and selected members of the press. Please visit Current Analysis at www.currentanalysis.com

###